Jithin Yohannan MD, MPH is an Assistant Professor of Ophthalmology at the Wilmer Eye Institute, Johns Hopkins University. His clinical and surgical practice focuses on glaucoma and complex anterior segment disease. His research lab, which spans both the Wilmer Eye Institute and Malone Center for Engineering in Healthcare, develops and validates AI-based methods to improve patient care by accurately forecasting glaucoma trajectory and improving the quality of glaucoma testing.