

AES

Atlantic Eye Symposium

Dr. Mahshad Darvish is an Assistant Professor at the Department of Ophthalmology at McGill University, the Program Director of the ophthalmology residency program and has a cornea and anterior segment practice at the Jewish General Hospital in Montreal, Canada. He did his medical school, residency and MBA at McGill University and his cornea fellowship at the Cincinnati Eye Institute. His areas of interest include ocular surface reconstruction, anterior segment surgery and medical education.

